You've dabbled in numerous fields in your life, thanks to having the personal finances to indulge your little whims and foibles. But recently, you've discovered you're real love is art: painting animals and landscapes, as well as studying the classic Renaissance masters.

You're still trying to find your style, though, which means traveling around looking for inspiration. You've been to Italy, you've been to Paris, and although you love the the classical painters, their style just isn't quite you. So, now you're looking in more down to Earth places - like Massachusetts! At least it's a little nearer to home than Europe.

You're currently touring the Eastern Seaboard and its various capes, steadily working your way down from Portland and Cape Elizabeth to Provincetown and Cape Cod. You may even pop into Martha's Vineyard before heading home. So, you're not the first to seek inspiration from the coastal towns and villages hereabouts, but there's something about the point where the sea meets the land that you just find fascinating. And the light!

And that's why you find yourself on the SS Essex County, heading for Rockport, the next stop on your artistic tour. It's supposed to be a pretty enough place, despite the local quarry. You just hope there's something there that can act as your muse.

Roleplaying hooks

- To find something that arouses your artistic passions. But you'll need to keep an open mind - you never know when inspiration will strike, or from where!
